Juergen Teller's Night Out

Photos by Ryan James MacFarland

Last Thursday, while shoppers and gawkers clogged New York stores for Fashion's Night Out, a select group of the city's fashion and art set gathered at Lehmann Maupin's 26th Street gallery for the opening of Juergen Teller's new exhibition of photographs, Paradis. Photographers Inez and Vinoodh rubbed shoulders with models Lily Cole and Hannelore Knuts, while Elizabeth Peyton, Terry Richardson and Nate Lowman admired Teller's works. And when a low-key Björk and Matthew Barney showed up with their daughter, Isadora, in tow, even this too-cool-for-school crowd seemed a little star-struck. The show, which captures subjects Charlotte Rampling and Raquel Zimmermann in a late-night exploration of the Louvre, runs through October 17.
